Session Highlight: New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open for August 31st Trading Day)

Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- Federal Reserve Chair Kevin Warsh delivered hawkish remarks at the Jackson Hole Economic Symposium on Friday, August 28, 2026, reiterating the Fed's commitment to a 2% inflation target.
- These comments significantly increased the market's anticipation of a potential interest rate hike in September, with probabilities shifting to between 58% and 60%.
- The hawkish stance led to a strengthening of the U.S. dollar and a notable increase in Treasury yields, particularly for two-year notes.
- Geopolitical tensions, particularly in the Middle East, continue to be a source of uncertainty for energy markets and global supply chains.
- Upcoming week to feature rate decisions from the Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) and Bank of Canada (BoC), alongside US Non-Farm Payrolls (NFP) data.

2. US & European Markets

- US markets closed lower on Friday, August 28, following Fed Chair Warsh's remarks.
- Wall Street futures show mixed signals for the upcoming Monday session (August 31), with some tech stocks showing resilience.
- Mega-cap US stocks:
 - Nvidia (NVDA) showed strong performance on Friday, supported by upbeat outlooks regarding AI-related investments, leading to gains in related sectors. NVDA's pre-market activity on Monday shows a slight dip.
 - Tesla (TSLA) is trading slightly higher in pre-market.
 - Microsoft (MSFT) is also marginally up in pre-market.
- The AI boom continues to bolster sales for server technology providers like Super Micro Computer Inc. (SMCI), which saw strong revenue forecasts earlier in August.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian benchmark indices, Nifty and Sensex, concluded the week ending August 28 with a third consecutive weekly decline, their longest losing streak in five months.
- However, both indices ended a two-session losing streak on Friday, August 28, supported by gains in IT, pharmaceutical, and metal stocks.
- The broader market, including the Nifty Smallcap and Midcap indices, demonstrated resilience by reaching fresh record highs during the week.
- Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) were net sellers for the week ending August 28, with outflows of approximately ₹2,060.24 crore, while Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) provided strong buying support with inflows of approximately ₹19,309.93 crore.
- Key technical levels for Nifty 50 indicate immediate support at 24,000-24,050 and resistance at 24,240-24,300.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- Crude Oil: WTI crude oil prices traded in a tight range, settling around $83.40/bbl on Friday, August 28. The market is closely watching geopolitical tensions (US-Iran conflict) and low US Strategic Petroleum Reserves (SPR) as potential upside catalysts. Technical analysis suggests WTI has compressed into a large triangle pattern, hinting at an imminent sharp move.
- Gold: Gold prices experienced a significant decline of approximately 3% for both spot and New York futures on Friday, August 28, following the hawkish remarks from Fed Chair Warsh. Despite the drop, Indian retail gold prices saw a slight recovery in over-the-counter trading on Sunday, August 30. Goldman Sachs anticipates continued strong central bank demand for gold, projecting a potential rise to $4,900 by the end of 2026.
- Crypto: Bitcoin (BTC) is currently trading around $78,128, with a 0.64% gain in the last 24 hours (as of August 30, 06:00 UTC). The total cryptocurrency market capitalization increased by 0.76% over the same period. Ethereum (ETH) recorded a 0.69% increase. Bitcoin Knots, a specific Bitcoin client, is planning a significant Proof of Work algorithm change on August 30, shifting to BLAKE2b, which could impact mining hardware, though its adoption across the broader network is uncertain. Bitcoin's supply in profit has reached 70%, signaling a potential recovery phase.
