📰 SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The US Federal Reserve's Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting concludes today, October 28, 2026. Markets widely expect the Fed to keep interest rates unchanged at the current target range of 3.75%-4.00% after a 25 basis point hike in September. However, investors are keenly focused on the post-meeting statement and Fed Chair Kevin Warsh's press conference for any hawkish signals regarding future policy, with an 80-90% probability of a December rate hike being priced in.
- The European Central Bank (ECB) and the Bank of Japan (BOJ) are also scheduled to announce their respective interest rate decisions later this week, with the ECB expected to hold rates steady.
- The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) is anticipated to raise its official cash rate by 25 basis points today.
- US 10-year nominal Treasury yields and real yields have recently declined, which could reduce the opportunity cost of holding gold. September US CPI data showed inflation running at 3.7% year-over-year.
- Geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, including reports of potential renewed US strikes on Iran, continue to contribute to elevated crude oil prices.

2. US & European Markets

- US stock futures are exhibiting mixed movements in pre-market trading, though Nasdaq futures are showing some gains, continuing the optimism seen in Wall Street's previous session.
- Mega-cap technology giants Microsoft (MSFT) and Alphabet (GOOGL) are set to release their quarterly earnings after the market closes today. Amazon (AMZN) will report tomorrow. Investors are closely scrutinizing these reports for insights into capital expenditure and demand trends, particularly concerning significant investments in Artificial Intelligence (AI).
- The semiconductor sector is a major focus, with strong earnings from SK Hynix sparking a global rally in AI-related stocks. Infineon is making a significant €1.1 billion investment to establish the world's first high-volume manufacturing facility for gallium nitride power semiconductors on 300-millimeter wafers in Europe. Sony Semiconductor Solutions also announced a new high-performance CMOS image sensor for mobile applications.
- Pre-market activity shows a mixed bag of movers, with some notable gainers like Ultralife (ULBI) and Davion Healthcare (DAVI), and losers such as Socket Mobile (SCKT) and Youxin Technology (YAAS).

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian equity markets opened lower today, with the Sensex falling over 600-900 points and the Nifty 50 dropping below 22,700, despite positive overnight cues from Wall Street. Selling pressure was concentrated in IT, FMCG, and energy sectors.
- Key domestic catalysts include elevated crude oil prices and the ongoing US Federal Reserve meeting. Jio Platforms made a strong market debut, listing at a 21% premium over its IPO price.
- Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) were net buyers on October 27, while Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) were net sellers.
- Nifty IT plunged over 3%, leading sectoral losses, while Nifty FMCG and Oil & Gas also saw declines. Conversely, Pharma, Auto, and Banking stocks provided some support. Top gainers in the Nifty 50 included Larsen & Toubro, Apollo Hospitals, SBI Life Insurance, Trent, and Bajaj Auto. Infosys, Tech Mahindra, TCS, and HCL Technologies were among the significant losers in the IT space.
- Corporate earnings reports include Vedanta's profit surging 78% year-over-year, Hindustan Unilever (HUL) posting a steady Q2 profit, and Arvind reporting a 16% YoY profit increase. Bajaj Finance plans to issue multi-tenor bonds.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil prices surged by over $2, with Brent crude reaching $115.90/bbl and WTI at $101.91/bbl, following reports of an attack on Saudi Arabia's Ras Tanura refinery by Yemen's Houthis. This event has heightened supply risk concerns amid volatile Middle East tensions.
- OPEC+ has extended its voluntary oil supply cuts of 2.2 million barrels per day through the end of 2026 to stabilize global crude markets. The group is expected to maintain its December output targets and will focus on 2027 quota negotiations.
- Gold prices are trading above $4,050 per ounce, exhibiting volatility as investors await the Fed's interest rate decision. Lower US real yields could decrease the opportunity cost of holding gold, though recent trends show mixed demand with global ETF inflows but North American outflows.
- In the crypto market, XRP saw intensified volatility following the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) granting final approval for Ripple National Trust Bank, boosting institutional adoption expectations for its RLUSD stablecoin.
- Globally, crypto regulatory developments are active: the EU's ESMA has directed licensed firms to wind down services for non-MiCA-compliant stablecoins by early January 2027, and the EBA classified USDC as the first significant e-money token. The UK FCA has opened its crypto authorization gateway. In the US, with the CLARITY Act stalled, regulators like the CFTC and SEC are advancing rulemaking on crypto transactions and custody. India Blockchain Week 2026 in Mumbai will feature discussions on institutional blockchain adoption.
