1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- Most Federal Reserve officials expect another interest rate hike will likely be needed this year to combat inflation, as inflation remains elevated and above target. However, policymakers may hold rates steady in October.
- The Fed increased its key interest rate at the September 15-16 meeting by a quarter-point to about 3.9%, its first increase in three years.
- The Federal Reserve Board released results of the 2025 Survey of Consumer Finances, indicating that real median family income rose 7% between 2022 and 2025 to $82,200.
- Eurogroup Chief Pierrakakis confirmed that the EU approved Greece's energy escape clause request.
- The Bank of Spain has lifted its 2026 inflation forecast to 3.9% and sees 3.7% inflation in 2027 (previously 2.7%), while also raising its 2026 economic growth forecast to 2.6% (previously 2.3%) and seeing 2.2% growth in 2027 (previously 1.7%).
- The EU Council has agreed on key elements of crucial measures to deepen EU capital markets, aiming to unlock private savings for investment and boost global competitiveness.
- Canada's Employment Change declined by 68.3k, significantly missing expectations of +7k, which led to a trimming of implied tightening by the Bank of Canada.

2. US & European Markets

- US stock futures are pointing higher pre-market, particularly led by technology shares, following a previous day's sell-off. The S&P 500 futures are up about 0.4%, Dow Jones Industrial Average futures up 0.14%, and Nasdaq 100 futures are higher by approximately 0.8%.
- A Bloomberg report stated that OpenAI expects to reach or exceed $70 billion in annualized revenue by year-end, helping to boost chip stocks like Nvidia, AMD, Broadcom, Micron, and Intel in premarket trading.
- Humana (HUM) surged 14.45% in premarket trading after receiving a favorable 4-star rating for its flagship Medicare Advantage contract from CMS.
- SpaceX (SPCX) shares were rising 4.12% in premarket after announcing an agreement to acquire Grain Management's nationwide 800 MHz low-band wireless spectrum assets. Barclays initiated coverage with a Buy rating and a $254 price target. However, this news caused telecommunication stocks like T-Mobile (TMUS), AT&T (T), and Verizon (VZ) to fall significantly in premarket.
- Delta Air Lines (DAL) fell over 4% in premarket after missing Q3 earnings estimates and slashing its 2026 profit outlook due to high fuel prices.
- Microsoft (MSFT) Cloud sales rose 27% to $59.3 billion this quarter, with Azure revenue jumping 43% year-over-year and exceeding $100 billion in annual revenue. JPMorgan named Microsoft a top software pick due to rising Copilot adoption and AI-driven demand. However, the U.S. Department of Labor suspended Microsoft from the PERM program amid federal investigations.
- Nvidia (NVDA) stock dropped 2.94% on Thursday, but the broader price structure remains upward, trading above its rising 20-day average. Nvidia is unlikely to conduct a stock split in 2026.
- Tesla (TSLA) reported Q3 deliveries of 486,532 vehicles, exceeding market expectations, and China-made EV sales reached a 2026 high in September. TSLA shares were up 2% at the time of writing, nearing their highest levels in nearly three months. However, concerns remain regarding substantial investments in robotaxi and humanoid robots.

- The recovery was led by a rally in IT stocks, especially Tata Consultancy Services (TCS), which jumped 4.23% after reporting a 15% increase in net profit for the July-September quarter.
- Easing crude oil prices and bargain buying after two days of sharp decline also supported the rally.
