Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The global economy has weathered the recent energy shock better than expected, thanks to oil and gas reserve drawdowns, increased non-Gulf energy supplies, lower energy demand, and a rise in renewable energy capacity. However, concerns remain about deteriorating fiscal conditions in some countries and the potential for central banks to maintain tight monetary policy to control inflation.
- European Central Bank (ECB) board member Isabel Schnabel emphasized the need for further interest rate hikes due to escalating inflation risks, persistent Middle East conflicts, and surprisingly robust Eurozone economic performance. The ECB is expected to raise its key deposit facility rate to 2.50% in September, up from the current 2.25%, to address inflationary pressures.
- The International Monetary Fund (IMF) managing director Kristalina Georgieva highlighted a "tug of war" between negative Gulf energy supply shock and growth tailwinds from the artificial intelligence investment boom.
- Core PCE (Personal Consumption Expenditures) Price Index, the Federal Reserve's preferred inflation indicator, is in focus today. The July core PCE inflation rose to 3.3%, in line with forecasts, but monthly consumer prices rose 0.2%, beating expectations of 0.1%. This keeps pressure on the Federal Reserve to hike interest rates. The annual inflation rate in the US slowed to 3.4% in July from 3.5% in June, aligning with expectations.

2. US & European Markets

- US stock index futures were mixed in pre-market trading ahead of Nvidia's earnings report and core PCE inflation data. Nasdaq futures edged lower, while Dow Jones futures rose slightly, and S&P 500 futures were nearly flat.
- NVIDIA (NVDA) showed resilience in pre-market trading, rising by 0.4% ahead of its highly anticipated quarterly earnings report, outperforming some competitors. Nvidia closed Tuesday near $213, snapping a seven-session losing streak. Wall Street consensus anticipates approximately $92 billion in revenue and $2.09 in adjusted earnings per share for Nvidia.
- Microsoft (MSFT) shares edged lower to around $488 early Wednesday despite a new long-term partnership with Saudi Arabia's AI firm Humain. Concerns exist regarding Microsoft's AI infrastructure spending and whether demand will outpace supply.
- Tesla (TSLA) shares opened at $350.25 on Wednesday. The company has a market capitalization of $1.38 trillion and a high P/E ratio, reflecting significant future growth expectations. Tesla's robotaxi program remains pre-revenue, with a large-scale expansion paused until FSD v15 is released in late 2026 or early 2027.
- S&P 500 futures slipped in early trade as traders awaited Nvidia's earnings. The index traded at 7,682.85 on Tuesday, above both its 50-period and 200-period moving averages.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian equity markets are expected to remain volatile. Nifty 50 reclaimed 24,300 on August 25, and the Sensex gained 287 points during the monthly expiry session.
- Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) bought ₹1,594 crore, and Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) invested ₹230 crore on August 25.
- Technical analysts are watching 24,400 and 24,500 on the upside for Nifty, with 24,200 acting as a key support zone. Bank Nifty's 20-DEMA is being monitored for a potential move toward 57,900.
- The Indian rupee strengthened, closing around ₹95.41-₹95.46 per US dollar.
- Stocks to watch include Sigma Advanced Systems (after securing a ₹1,600-crore deal), Vodafone Idea (amid reports of progress on SBI funding), and Cipla (due to USFDA observations at a facility).
- Indian equity benchmarks opened in the green on Wednesday, with Sensex up 250 points and Nifty up 20 points in early trading. However, Sensex settled 183 points lower, and Nifty was down 124 points by the close, as IT, Auto, and FMCG stocks dragged.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil prices are sharply lower, trading at approximately US$80.09 per barrel, down 2.8% from Tuesday's settlement, extending losses for a third consecutive session. This decline is driven by renewed Iran-Oman talks about establishing a temporary shipping corridor through the Strait of Hormuz, easing geopolitical risk premiums. US crude inventories built by 4.4 million barrels last week, exceeding forecasts and adding to supply pressure.
- Gold continues to consolidate after a four-day rally. A recovering dollar presents a headwind, partly offset by lower oil prices leading to lower bond yields.
- The overall cryptocurrency market capitalization fell 1.9% to $2.73 trillion in the last 24 hours, with Bitcoin and Ethereum declining. Trading volume weakened, and the Fear & Greed Index dropped to 65. Bitcoin fell from $79,674 to $78,768.70, and Ethereum slipped from $2,494.65 to $2,455.65.
- Coinbase is delisting ten perpetual futures contracts on August 26, including those on Memecoin (MEME), The Sandbox (SAND), and Axie Infinity (AXS), due to liquidity as the deciding criterion.
- DeFi market escalated 1.8% over the last 24 hours.
