SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- US Federal Reserve: The FOMC maintained interest rates at 3.50%-3.75% in its July meeting, but three regional Fed presidents dissented, advocating for a 25 basis point hike, highlighting internal divisions. Fed Chair Kevin Warsh is expected to maintain a hawkish stance, with potential for rate increases later in 2026 if inflation re-accelerates, driven by renewed Middle East hostilities and AI infrastructure demand, despite moderate June inflation data.
- European Central Bank (ECB) & Bank of England (BoE): Both central banks held their monetary policies steady, contributing to a weaker US Dollar and rallies in EUR/USD and GBP/USD.
- Bank of Japan (BoJ): The BoJ kept its interest rates unchanged at 1% on July 31st (an 8-1 vote), leading to a decline in the Japanese Yen against the Dollar.

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street Pre-Market Movers & Earnings: Microsoft Corp (MSFT) surged an impressive 15.51% (adding a record $450 billion to its market cap) on July 31st after reporting strong Q4 results, surpassing revenue ($90 billion) and EPS ($4.74) expectations, driven by 43% growth in its Azure cloud unit. This performance significantly boosted major US indices. Tesla (TSLA) stock rebounded over 3% after a post-earnings selloff, finding buyers near the $300 level. While Q2 EPS missed estimates ($0.33 vs. $0.50), revenue beat forecasts ($28.24 billion vs. $26.42 billion), with optimism surrounding robotaxis and autonomous driving providing support.
- Semiconductor Developments: The semiconductor industry is in a robust expansion phase. TSMC announced an additional $100 billion investment in Arizona to build 10 US fabs, focusing on advanced 2nm processes, propelled by strong AI demand. Intel's advanced packaging technologies (EMIB-T) in the US are crucial for next-generation AI semiconductors. Worldwide silicon wafer shipments increased by 7.4% year-on-year in Q2 2026, and Linde is investing $1 billion to support US semiconductor facility expansion.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Gold Prices: Gold prices in India rose on July 31st, with 24K gold reaching ₹14,460 per gram, aligning with global trends.
- Equity Market Snapshot: No specific market-moving news regarding Nifty/Sensex updates, corporate earnings, or FII/DII flows was immediately available for July 31, 2026. Indian market sentiment is expected to react to global cues and commodity price movements.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil: OPEC+ members, including Saudi Arabia and Russia, agreed on a 188,000 barrels per day production adjustment (an increase from earlier cuts) after their July 5th meeting and plan to meet again on August 2nd. The group is generally expected to maintain overall output steady for 2026. However, ongoing Middle East conflicts continue to cause significant supply disruptions, making actual output changes complex.
- Gold (XAU/USD): Gold dipped 0.5% to $4,076.53 on July 31st after the BoJ held rates, but is poised for its first monthly gain in five months, supported by central bank purchases and rising global risk. Technically, Gold consolidates around $4,077, supported by its 50-period EMA at $4,063. Key resistance is at $4,100 and $4,120; a break above $4,120 could target $4,172 and $4,220.
- Cryptocurrency Regulations: The US SEC proposed new crypto regulations for July 2026, aiming to provide safe harbor for Decentralized Finance (DeFi) platforms and tokenized securities. Despite legislative hurdles for the CLARITY Act in the Senate, SEC Chairman Paul Atkins indicated readiness to issue agency rules if Congress fails to act. US-based traders now have access to perpetual-style Bitcoin and Ether futures.

COMMODITIES (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

Gold (XAU/USD)	Bi-Directional	Pivot & Fibonacci Extension Levels: Currently consolidating around $4,077, supported by the 50-period EMA. A decisive break above $4,120 (key resistance/pivot) could trigger a bullish move towards Fibonacci extensions at $4,172 and $4,220. A failure to hold $4,063 (50-EMA) could lead to a test of $4,020.
WTI Crude Oil (CL=F)	Bi-Directional	Pivot & Fibonacci Extension Levels: Geopolitical tensions and upcoming OPEC+ discussions are expected to bring volatility. Currently trading around $82.50. A break above $83.80 (resistance) targets $85.50 (Fibonacci extension), while a break below $81.20 (support) targets $79.80.

Macro Carry Swings

Ticker	Direction	Strategy & Selection Reason
USD/JPY	Short (JPY Weakness)	Carry Trade / Macro Central Bank Divergence: The Yen fell against the Dollar after the Bank of Japan maintained its ultra-loose monetary policy (rates at 1%), contrasting with the Fed's hawkish undertones, creating a favorable environment for carry trades based on interest rate differentials.
AUD/USD	Long	Macro Trend Following: Potentially benefiting from broad US Dollar weakness following the Fed's steady rates and improving global risk sentiment, positioning for a long-term swing if global economic outlook remains robust.
