Session Highlight: New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open)

Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- Federal Reserve Chairman Kevin Warsh delivered keynote remarks at the Jackson Hole Economic Policy Symposium today, signaling that the central bank may need to raise interest rates further if inflation, which remains stubbornly above the 2% target, does not ease. This marks a clearer signal regarding his economic outlook.
- Financial markets reacted by pricing in a 55.5% possibility of a September rate hike, up from 35.4% yesterday. Short-term Treasury yields, particularly the 2-year note, rose significantly in anticipation of higher rates. The 10-year Treasury yield also increased slightly.
- The Fed's preferred inflation measure, the 12-month change in the PCE price index, stands at 3.7%, with the six-month change at 4.1%, both elevated above the target.
- US consumer confidence dropped in August, reflecting growing concerns about the labor market and economic outlook. Preliminary estimates also showed US job growth marked down by 79,000.
- Global equity funds experienced outflows for the first time in 13 weeks, with US equity funds seeing significant net sales, as investors grew cautious ahead of Chairman Warsh's speech and Nvidia's earnings.

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street futures were mixed pre-market, with Nasdaq 100 and S&P 500 futures slightly down, while Dow Jones Industrial Average futures showed a slight gain.
- NVIDIA (NVDA) reported Q2 FY27 revenue of $96.2 billion, up 106% year-over-year, and forecasted strong current-quarter revenue of approximately $108 billion, indicating accelerating demand for AI infrastructure. Despite blowout earnings and optimistic guidance, NVDA shares retraced by 3.14% today due to profit-taking, technical consolidation, and market scrutiny over forward-looking gross margin compression from advanced component costs.
- Microsoft (MSFT) is on track for its highest close since October 2025, up 2.5% today, and recently experienced a "golden cross" event (50-day SMA crossing above 200-day SMA), signaling a potential bullish breakout. Microsoft announced a 50MW AI compute deployment in North America using NVIDIA GB300 NVL72 infrastructure, highlighting its continued focus on building AI infrastructure.
- Tesla (TSLA) stock was down 2.0% today, amidst broader macroeconomic caution.
- Gap shares soared 14% in pre-market trading despite mixed Q2 2026 results, following the announcement of a new CEO for Old Navy. Conversely, Marvell Technology stock fell 6% due to gross margin guidance falling short of expectations, despite exceeding Q2 FY27 earnings and revenue estimates. PayPal plunged about 13% on news that Advent and Stripe abandoned a $53 billion bid to acquire the fintech company.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- (Note: Specific live updates for Sensex/Nifty, corporate earnings, and FII/DII flows for August 28, 2026, were not readily available in the search results. General market indicators suggest global caution.)
- The Sri Lankan Rupee appreciated by 0.1% against the US Dollar year-to-date, as of August 28, 2026.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil prices were largely steady but on track for weekly losses of 4-5%, as geopolitical risk premiums softened due to eased tensions over the U.S.-Iran war and improved crude flows through the Strait of Hormuz. WTI fell 0.38% to $83.21 a barrel.
- OPEC+ countries, including Saudi Arabia and Russia, agreed on August 2, 2026, to implement a production adjustment of 188 thousand barrels per day for September 2026, following earlier voluntary adjustments. The next meeting is scheduled for September 6, 2026.
- Gold (XAU/USD) prices slipped toward $4,580, falling approximately 0.4% as investors awaited signals from Fed Chair Warsh's speech at Jackson Hole. Gold has been supported by declining US consumer confidence, falling Treasury yields, and a weakening US dollar, reaching a record high of $2669.70 earlier this week. Geopolitical tensions in the Middle East and expectations of a potential Fed rate cut in November have also supported gold.
- Bitcoin hit $81,041, up 2.87%, while Ether reached $2,527 after a 1.24% gain, with total crypto capitalization hitting $2.70 trillion, rising 1.97% with expanded volume. This "risk-on" setup is partly driven by optimism over regulatory progress and US Treasury intervention in the bond market. Solana jumped 8.28%, tied to Charles Schwab's planned SOL listing. Bitcoin's trajectory is being closely watched for a potential move to $100,000.
