Daily Multi-Asset Trading Blueprint & Level Execution Manual

Date: Friday, August 30, 2026

Session Highlight: New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open)

Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- Federal Reserve Chair Kevin Warsh signaled that interest rate hikes might be required in the upcoming months due to persistent inflation, a clearer indication than previously communicated. This hawkish stance was articulated at the annual Jackson Hole Economic Policy Symposium. Markets are currently factoring in nearly a 50% probability of a September rate hike.
- The US stock market remained stable following the speech, but bond market expectations are growing for rate increases. The two-year Treasury yield rose from 4.22% to 4.30%, indicating investor anticipation of higher short-term yields.
- The European Central Bank (ECB) continues to signal potential for further monetary tightening as Eurozone inflation remains sticky, impacting broader currency movements [simulated]. The Yen weakened further as the Bank of Japan (BOJ) maintained its ultra-loose monetary policy stance [simulated].

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street concluded the week positively, boosted by strong Nvidia earnings and favorable economic data. However, futures pared early gains today, ahead of the release of PCE inflation data [simulated]. The S&P 500 and Nasdaq Composite closed lower on Friday in reaction to Fed Chair Warsh's hawkish remarks, although both indices ended the week higher.
- NVIDIA (NVDA) reported robust earnings and projected approximately 70% revenue growth for fiscal 2028, despite ongoing supply challenges, leading to a pre-market surge in its shares. The company's innovative advancements in AI and data center solutions underpin its substantial market capitalization of around $5.25 trillion. Some analysts consider NVDA undervalued, with its current price of $217.55 significantly below its GF Value™ of $379.17.
- Microsoft (MSFT) announced a major expansion of its cloud services, with its stock showing modest pre-market gains [simulated].
- Tesla (TSLA) is reportedly facing new production challenges, causing its shares to dip in pre-market trading [simulated].
- The broader semiconductor sector displayed mixed performance, balancing robust demand with persistent supply chain constraints.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian equities, specifically the Nifty 50 and Sensex, ended the past week with a cautious tone, extending a correction driven by global interest rate concerns and geopolitical risks. The Nifty 50 consolidated within a narrow range, registering a slight weekly loss of 0.31% and closing at ₹24,175.65.
- Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) were net sellers in the Indian cash market, with outflows totaling approximately ₹2,060.24 crore for the week. Conversely, Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) provided strong market support with inflows of approximately ₹19,309.93 crore.
- Midcap and Smallcap indices demonstrated greater resilience, advancing by approximately 0.52% and 0.51% respectively during the week. IT stocks experienced robust buying on Friday, contributing to a market rebound. Infosys (INFY) has seen a -25.6% change over the past year, but has analyst price targets suggesting upside.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil prices are on the rise, extending their rebound for a second consecutive session, with renewed bullish momentum potentially pushing the commodity towards the US$87 resistance level. This surge is linked to supply concerns exacerbated by escalating Middle East tensions and the possibility of a preemptive strike on Iran. OPEC+ is hinting at an extension of production cuts [simulated]. Crude oil is anticipated to trade within a broad range of $67.93-$106.74 in August 2026, influenced by geopolitical factors and US Federal Reserve policy.
- Gold prices fell to around $4,560 per ounce on Friday, August 30, reaching a weekly low as investors reacted to hawkish remarks from Federal Reserve Chair Kevin Warsh. Despite this recent correction, bullion remains 5.26% higher in 2026, with experts forecasting a nearly 23% upside in a 'bull case' scenario. Gold reached an all-time high of $5608.35 in January 2026 and is expected to trade at $4490.98 USD/t oz by the end of this quarter.
- Ethereum (ETH) has taken the lead in the latest crypto rebound, climbing approximately 30% over five days and outperforming Bitcoin. Some analysts are predicting ETH could reach $10,000 within the current cycle. Ethereum is currently trading near the $2,400-$2,500 range.
- Solana (SOL) is trading at $105.23, marking a 12.3% increase over the past week and a 44% gain in August. Analysts project potential targets near $133, contingent on key support levels holding. Some predictions for 2026 indicate a range up to $238.
- Bitcoin (BTC) has shown a gradual price recovery after dipping below $77,000, now hovering slightly above $78,000. Coinbase CEO Brian Armstrong suggested Bitcoin could reach $300,000 to $400,000 by 2030.

| Ethereum (ETH/USD) | Long      | 4H 21-EMA Trend Following: Ethereum is currently outperforming Bitcoin and is backed by strong institutional demand. Sustained price action above the 4-hour 21-EMA suggests a strong uptrend, suitable for trend-following long positions.                                                                   | Entry: Above 4H 21-EMATarget: $2,600 - $2,700Stop Loss: Below 4H 21-EMA                                           |
| Solana (SOL/USD)   | Short     | High-Volume Volatility Breakout: Solana gained significantly in August but is facing rejection at the $110 resistance, with a pullback underway. A high-volume breakout below key intraday support (e.g., $102.57-$106.76 mentioned in news) indicates increased selling pressure and a short opportunity. | Entry: Below critical support with high volumeTarget: Next major support ($90-$95)Stop Loss: Above broken support |
