SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- ECB: The European Central Bank is widely expected to deliver one more 25 basis point rate hike in September, bringing the deposit rate to 2.50%. This move is anticipated due to persistent energy-driven inflation, with Eurozone inflation recorded at 2.9% in July, and resilient economic growth. Markets are currently pricing in an 80% probability of a September rate increase. The ECB is then projected to hold rates steady through mid-2027.
- Bank of England (BOE): The BOE recently held its rates steady. However, the central bank forecasts CPI to rise to approximately 3.2% in Q4 2026 as higher energy costs continue to impact consumers. There were dissenting policymakers advocating for an immediate rate hike amidst inflation concerns. For the BOE's September meeting, markets suggest an 81% probability of no change, but a 19% chance of a rate hike.
- US Federal Reserve (Fed): The July Producer Price Index (PPI) for final demand was unchanged from June, and the year-over-year PPI was up 4.7%, indicating a potential downward trend in producer price inflation. This data is contributing to easing expectations for a Fed rate hike next month, with money markets now pricing less than a 40% probability of a September hike. Attention remains on upcoming US Consumer Price Index (CPI) data.
- Bank of Japan (BOJ): Sources suggest the BOJ could raise rates in September and consider a faster pace of hikes thereafter. An ex-official noted that Yen intervention could occur at any level, following previous interventions by Japan and the US which saw the Yen unwind some gains.

2. US & European Markets

- US Markets: The S&P 500 reached a new record high after absorbing the July PPI report. US stocks experienced an upward trend on Thursday. The anticipation of fewer Federal Reserve rate hikes is a supportive factor for the markets.
- European Markets: European shares closed lower on Thursday, primarily influenced by ongoing Middle East tensions and concerns over energy supply. Earlier in the week, European markets showed mixed performance, with some gains on optimism for a US-Iran deal, but also declines due to broader Middle East worries.
- Tech Sector: Major tech earnings are a key focus for investors this week. Notably, Nvidia is reportedly collaborating with Wall Street giants on a significant financing initiative that could channel up to $500 billion into AI infrastructure development.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Market Open: Indian shares are poised for a flat opening today as investors weigh geopolitical risks in the Middle East against tempered expectations of a US Federal Reserve rate hike.
- Current Trends: Both the Sensex and Nifty indices are trading lower in early Friday trade, with Sensex down over 250 points and Nifty below 24,350.
- Institutional Flows: Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) have reportedly offloaded nearly Rs 1 lakh crore worth of specific stocks, though eight stocks managed to resist the selloff.
- Sectoral Performance: The banking, auto, and metal sectors are facing a downturn, while the IT and FMCG sectors are showing resilience.
- RBI Developments: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has proposed new interest rate regulations for regulated entities and is seeking public feedback on draft rules to standardize lending rates. Bank deposits have achieved their highest growth in a decade, boosted by NRI dollar inflows.
- El Nino Impact: Corporate concern regarding the El Nino phenomenon has reached a multi-year high, particularly among Indian companies heavily reliant on monsoon rainfall.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- Crude Oil: Oil prices have stabilized, with West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude trading around $81 per barrel following a recent five-day surge. However, earlier in the week, prices had climbed significantly, with Brent crude nearing $90 a barrel, driven by geopolitical tensions and diminishing hopes for a US-Iran agreement. US crude inventories have shown an increase.
- Gold (XAU/USD): Gold prices have dropped below $4,400 per ounce, influenced by signs of moderating US inflation. This follows a retreat from a two-month high that was spurred by inflation-driven rallies. Geopolitical factors had previously offered support to gold prices.
- Crypto: Bitcoin's price has fallen below $64,000 as the latest US CPI data failed to trigger a breakout. Ethereum is facing a risk of falling to $1,850 after losing the $1,900 level. Tether has received an unqualified opinion from KPMG in its first full audit. Gemini reported a Q2 loss of $107.7 million due to a drop in spot trading volume. The CFTC has scheduled crypto talks for August 20, pending a CLARITY vote. Rumble, a company with a market value of $2.8 billion, increased its Bitcoin holdings by 82.32 in Q2 2026, bringing its total to 293.14 Bitcoin. Additionally, a breach at Trezor's shipping provider exposed the personal data of nearly 14,000 customers.
