SESSION NEWS FOCUS: Focus heavily on Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- Federal Reserve Chair Kevin Warsh's recent comments at the Jackson Hole Economic Policy Symposium indicate a hawkish stance, with signals that interest rate hikes may be necessary in the coming months if inflation remains stubbornly elevated.
- The Federal Reserve had previously kept benchmark rates steady at 3.5% to 3.75%, though three officials voted for a hike amidst persistent inflation concerns.
- The 10-year U.S. Treasury yield is currently hovering near 4.73%.
- The International Monetary Fund (IMF) reported that the global economy is being shaped by two opposing forces: the drag from ongoing geopolitical conflicts and the strong impetus from artificial intelligence enthusiasm.
- European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen stressed the importance for Europe to diversify its economic and trading relationships, citing renewed friction over tariffs between the United States and Canada.

2. US & European Markets

- US stock markets concluded Friday lower following Fed Chair Warsh's hawkish remarks, yet managed to secure modest gains for the week.
- On Friday, the Dow Jones Industrial Average (DJIA) registered a slight dip of 0.02%, the S&P 500 (SPX) declined by 0.25%, and the Nasdaq (NDX) saw a 0.70% drop.
- Despite recent weakness, major US indices have seen significant rallies since late March, with the Dow up approximately 19%, the S&P 500 gaining around 22%, and the Nasdaq surging about 27%, largely propelled by enthusiasm around artificial intelligence.
- Pre-market movers: SPDR Dow Jones Industrial Average (DIA) is showing a pre-market gain of +0.18%, SPDR S&P 500 (SPY) is up +0.06%, while the Invesco QQQ Trust (QQQ) is down -0.16%, and iShares Russell 2000 (IWM) is down -0.11%.
- Mega-cap US stocks:
 - NVIDIA (NVDA): Reported a record fiscal Q2 2027 revenue of $96.2 billion, a 106% year-over-year increase, with data center revenue soaring to $89 billion (up 117% YoY) driven by immense demand for AI chips. Nvidia forecasts approximately $108 billion in revenue for the current quarter, with its market valuation surpassing $5.1 trillion.
 - Microsoft (MSFT): Its Azure Cloud revenue experienced a 41% acceleration in Q4 2026, reaching $100 billion in annual sales, positioning it strongly for providing AI cloud infrastructure for robotics.
 - Tesla (TSLA): Q2 deliveries reached 480,126 vehicles. The company faces ongoing execution and regulatory challenges, including increasing competition and heightened scrutiny over vehicle quality from the Chinese government. A recent positive development includes approval to launch robotaxi operations in Las Vegas. Tesla stock was down almost 2% on Friday.
- European markets exhibited mixed sentiment on Friday, posting moderate gains but showing caution ahead of the Jackson Hole meeting. Oil prices dipped below $90 per barrel despite new US sanctions against Iran.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- The Indian equity markets closed higher on Friday, with the Sensex advancing 330.92 points (0.43%) to 77,264.51 and the Nifty 50 gaining 84.8 points (0.35%) to 24,175.65.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil: The price of WTI crude oil is currently $83.01 per barrel as of August 30, 2026, marking a 0.28% decline over the last 24 hours, trading within a range of $82.74 to $83.24. Crude prices saw modest losses on Friday due to a stronger dollar and indications of increased crude supplies through the Strait of Hormuz. Oil prices are heavily influenced by OPEC+ production decisions, geopolitical events, global economic growth, and inventory data.
- Gold (XAU/USD): Gold rose 0.91% to $4,505.60 on Friday. However, it had dropped over 0.42% on Friday, with the price diving below $4,600 and refreshing weekly lows of $4,530, as Fed Chair Warsh's hawkish stance pushed the US Dollar and Treasury yields higher, leading money markets to price in a potential rate hike in 2026. On August 28, 2026, Gold fell to $4454.08, but remains up 9.54% over the past month and 29.13% year-on-year.
- Crypto Wire: The SEC proposed new "Regulation Crypto Assets" on July 22, 2026, which is expected to significantly alter how crypto projects engage with the U.S. market. This comes as VOIDTRACE AI prepares for its $VOIDE token presale on September 4, 2026, against a shifting regulatory landscape. State regulators, particularly in New York and California, are increasing oversight and enforcement actions against crypto firms operating without proper licenses. The SEC also issued SAB 122, rescinding previous guidance (SAB 121) that required entities to recognize liabilities for safeguarding crypto assets.
