Session Highlight: New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open)

Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- US Federal Reserve: Recent dovish comments from Fed Governor Waller have eased market expectations for immediate rate hikes, with futures trading showing a drop in September rate hike odds. However, Fed Chair Kevin Warsh has reiterated a hawkish stance, emphasizing the commitment to curb inflation to the 2% target, suggesting that further action remains on the table unless data justifies a pause. The September 16th FOMC meeting is keenly watched for policy direction. Markets are scaling back expectations for U.S. rate hikes in 2026.
- European Central Bank (ECB): The ECB is widely anticipated to deliver another 25-basis-point rate hike in December, driven by the eurozone economy's unexpected resilience despite ongoing Middle East conflicts and persistent, albeit contained, headline inflation.
- Bank of Japan (BoJ): Governor Ueda is scheduled to speak at Japan's National Securities Convention on October 6, with markets anticipating insights into future monetary policy.
- Bank of Canada (BoC): The BoC maintained a hawkish stance at its 2.25% overnight rate, primarily due to rising inflation risks stemming from a US-Canada trade clash, a weaker Canadian dollar, retaliatory tariffs, and the Middle East conflict contributing to higher energy prices.
- Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA): The RBA held rates steady at 4.35%, with the next policy move more likely to be a cut rather than a hike, according to recent assessments.
- Inflation & Global Growth: Persistent inflation concerns continue to elevate government borrowing costs across Europe. Global growth is projected at 3.3% for 2026, slightly revised up, but U.S. inflation is expected to return to its target more gradually than global inflation.
- Currency Drivers: The US Dollar remains supported by the Fed's hawkish sentiment, while the Euro is relatively flat. The Japanese Yen has rallied against the dollar ahead of the US jobs report.

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street Pre-Market: US stock futures are largely flat ahead of the crucial August nonfarm payrolls report due today, which could significantly influence the Fed's next policy moves.
- Mega-Cap Tech & Semiconductors: NVIDIA (NVDA) experienced a slight dip after confirming its acquisition of Hugging Face for nearly $13 billion, expanding its AI platform dominance. Broadcom (AVGO) saw profit-taking despite beating earnings expectations, as its guidance didn't match NVIDIA's highly bullish outlook. Microsoft (MSFT) and other mega-cap tech giants remain key market leaders, driving Nasdaq direction. Tesla (TSLA) is making headlines with plans to offer Cybercab rides in Austin after a muted initial launch.
- Key Pre-Market Movers: Snowflake (SNOW) surged an impressive 24% in pre-market trading following strong quarterly results and optimistic guidance, signaling continued AI-driven acceleration. Conversely, Lululemon (LULU) saw its stock sink 18% after critical comments from Michael Burry. PayPal (PYPL) is also gaining attention with renewed takeover speculation. In Europe, Volkswagen rallied 5.7% after announcing a major transformation plan.
- Index Momentum: European markets, including the pan-European STOXX 600, are muted to slightly lower. US major indexes ended a three-session losing streak yesterday, with the Nasdaq benefiting from easing yields, a weaker DXY, and lower volatility.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Market Sentiment: Indian equities are expected to open cautiously, influenced by global cues, especially the upcoming US nonfarm payrolls report and the prevailing hawkish stance of major central banks. FII/DII flows will be crucial for directional momentum.
- Sectoral Focus: Sectors tied to global growth and commodities may see volatility, while domestic consumption and infrastructure-related stocks could find support.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil: Crude oil prices are on track for their steepest weekly gain since mid-July, primarily driven by escalating US-Iran tensions and concerns over Middle East supply disruptions in the Strait of Hormuz. Brent crude is trading around $95.55 a barrel, and WTI at approximately $91.55 a barrel. However, signals from the US administration indicating no plans for an "indefinite war" with Iran have helped temper some market anxieties. US crude inventories showing a 4.5 million-barrel draw further support prices.
- Gold (XAU/USD): Gold is hovering near multi-month peaks, opening at $4,459.80 and closing near $4,482.20 yesterday. The precious metal is strongly supported by expectations of Fed rate cuts in 2026, a cooling US labor market, a weaker US dollar, softer Treasury yields, persistent geopolitical tensions, and robust central bank buying. Goldman Sachs forecasts gold reaching $4,900 per ounce by year-end 2026, citing strong central bank demand for reserve diversification. Chinese retail demand is also a significant driver, with record gold imports into the onshore market.
- Crypto: Bitcoin is trading around $78,535. Revolut has received conditional approval for a US national bank charter, signaling potential growth in regulated crypto financial services by 2027. Discussions around Bitcoin reserves are intensifying, reinforcing gold's traditional safe-haven role amidst fiscal and geopolitical instability.
