SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The European Central Bank (ECB) raised its key interest rates by 25 basis points at its September meeting, marking its second hike since the US-Iran war began. The deposit facility, main refinancing operations, and marginal lending facility rates were increased to 2.50%, 2.65%, and 2.90% respectively, effective September 16, 2026.
- ECB President Christine Lagarde stated that risks to growth are tilted to the downside, while inflation risks are currently tilted to the upside, emphasizing a data-dependent, meeting-by-meeting approach for future decisions. The ECB's baseline staff projections see headline inflation averaging 3.0% in 2026, 2.5% in 2027, and 2.1% in 2028.
- The Bank of England (BoE) is widely expected to keep interest rates unchanged at its upcoming monetary policy meeting this week, which concludes on Thursday, despite mixed UK employment figures. However, the BoE is anticipated to strike a hawkish tone due to recent moves in energy prices and a deteriorating inflation outlook. UK jobs data released today showed the ILO Unemployment Rate holding steady at 4.9% in the three months to July, but jobless claimants increased by 27.8K, significantly more than expected.
- The US Federal Reserve (Fed) is expected to hike interest rates later this week. Following an August core Consumer Price Index (CPI) report that showed a higher-than-expected 0.3% rise, traders are now pricing in about a 92.4% chance of a Fed rate hike at its September meeting. The 10-year US Treasury yield recently touched 5% for the first time since 2023.
- Global central banks are facing a new era of higher inflation volatility, which is forcing a reset in policy conduct and a greater commitment to inflation targets, leading to potentially more volatile short-term interest rates.

2. US & European Markets

- European stock markets finished lower on Monday due to a sell-off in the chip and AI sectors and a surge in oil prices, though London's FTSE 100 outperformed, benefiting from lower exposure to technology stocks.
- US stock futures are showing mixed sentiment, with some reports indicating a fall in major indices at the open on Monday due to uncertainty around AI IPOs and surging oil prices.
- Concerns about an "AI slowdown" have impacted tech stocks globally.
- The Euro Area's main stock market index, the EU50, fell to 6279 points on September 14, 2026, a 0.72% loss from the previous session, and has declined 3.85% over the past month.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian benchmark indices, Sensex and Nifty, opened higher today, driven by a strong rally in IT stocks and HDFC Bank. However, they later erased early gains and turned lower, with Sensex falling over 100 points and Nifty below 23,350, as soaring bond yields and elevated crude oil prices spooked investors.
- Among individual stocks, HCL Tech, Tech Mahindra, Tata Consultancy Services, and Infosys saw significant jumps in early trade, with HDFC Bank also climbing over 3%. The IT sector emerged as the strongest performer, while metal, realty, and PSU bank stocks struggled.
- FIIs (Foreign Institutional Investors) were net sellers with ₹-930.90 Cr, while DIIs (Domestic Institutional Investors) were net buyers with ₹1,968.17 Cr, resulting in a net overall inflow of ₹1,037.27 Cr. Over September 2026, FIIs have been net buyers of ₹579 Cr, while DIIs bought ₹24,987 Cr.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- Crude oil prices remain elevated, with Brent crude nearing $100 a barrel and WTI crude above $95, driven by ongoing geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, particularly Houthi attacks near Saudi energy facilities and US strikes near Iran. This has fueled short-term supply worries and raised inflation projections.
- Gold (XAU/USD) prices declined amidst rising oil prices and concerns over central bank rate hikes. Hong Kong has emerged as a significant hub for Russian gold, with over 100 tonnes imported in the first seven months of 2026.
- In crypto news, the U.S. Senate passed the GENIUS Act, a bipartisan bill aimed at creating a comprehensive federal framework for stablecoin regulation. This legislation would establish a dual-track federal and state regulatory system and could unlock significant institutional adoption by providing clear rules for banks and brokers. The SEC has also withdrawn prior accounting guidance (SAB 121), which is seen as a win for digital asset adoption.
