📰 SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The Federal Reserve's Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) minutes from September 15-16, 2026, indicated that most officials anticipate another interest rate increase will likely be necessary this year to combat inflation.
- Markets are currently pricing in a low probability (around 17%) of a rate hike at the October 28 meeting, but a much higher probability (around 84%) for the December 9 meeting.
- Inflation remains elevated, and the Fed increased its key interest rate by a quarter-point to approximately 3.9% at the September meeting, marking its first hike in three years.
- The benchmark 10-year Treasury yield is around 5.24%, nearing a 24-year high, which continues to pose challenges for equity performance and puts pressure on stock valuations.
- Despite the US economy being largely unchanged according to a Fed report, global economic and geopolitical uncertainties are weighing on markets.

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street futures indicate a mixed open, with the S&P 500 hovering near record highs, but bank stocks have been underperforming, raising concerns ahead of upcoming bank earnings reports.
- Tesla (TSLA): Shares closed at $382.70 on October 9, 2026, moving above the $380 resistance level after third-quarter deliveries of 486,532 vehicles exceeded analyst expectations. Elon Musk announced plans to develop superior chips and establish a "Terrafab" factory, involving significant capital expenditures exceeding $25 billion in 2026. The company's Q3 earnings report is scheduled for October 21, 2026. GuruFocus indicates TSLA is 14.0% overvalued with a GF Value™ of $335.60.
- NVIDIA (NVDA): The stock continues to reach record highs, closing at $238.90 on October 5, 2026, driven by robust AI infrastructure demand and strong Q2 revenue of $96.2 billion, with Q3 revenue projected at $108 billion. Analysts remain bullish, focusing on the next-generation Rubin platform. There are some concerns regarding AI infrastructure valuations and debt-funded spending.
- Microsoft (MSFT): The stock is considered 10.3% undervalued by GuruFocus, with a price of $530.33 against a GF Value™ of $591.09. Microsoft is experiencing strong Azure growth and AI demand, having recently introduced "Microsoft-Decision-1," a new AI model. Upcoming Q1 FY27 earnings on October 28 will include a new segment reporting structure with direct Azure revenue disclosure. Microsoft, among other tech companies, faces suspension from an immigration program due to foreign labor visa regulation abuses.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian equity benchmarks, Sensex and Nifty, concluded an eight-week losing streak on Friday, October 9, rebounding significantly. The Nifty 50 closed at 22,520 and the Sensex at 72,472, with gains attributed to easing oil prices and a rally in IT stocks.
- Tata Consultancy Services (TCS) reported strong quarterly earnings, highlighting growth from AI and international business, which boosted sentiment in the IT sector.
- Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) have been net sellers in Indian equities, offloading Rs 3.04 lakh crore in 2026, while Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) have provided support.
- Despite the rebound, concerns persist over elevated crude oil prices, rising global bond yields, and continued FII selling.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil: OPEC+ decided on October 4, 2026, to maintain its September 2026 production quotas for November 2026, leaving output unchanged. Geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, including the "Iran war," are disrupting Gulf exports, leading to tight oil markets. Hurricane Isaias has also disrupted approximately 72% of U.S. Gulf of Mexico offshore oil production, supporting prices. WTI crude closed at $91.85 on October 9, after rebounding from $87.00 support. Predictions suggest WTI could touch below $85 or rebound to $95 in October.
- Gold (XAU/USD): The gold market is holding above $4,100 support but facing initial resistance at $4,200, last trading at $4,187.30 on October 9. Elevated bond yields and persistent inflation pressures are capping prices, but investors continue to see value in gold as a hedge. The long-term outlook for gold remains bullish, with some analysts forecasting prices to reach $5,000 next year, supported by central bank gold accumulation.
- Crypto Wire: The US federal charter licensing process for crypto companies has been challenged in court, and Congress has reopened an investigation into Tether. New US sanctions were imposed on a digital asset network. European regulators proposed expanding MiCA regulations, while the UK began accepting crypto license applications. The SEC proposed new rules for the custody of crypto assets for registered investment advisers and regulated funds. International financial regulators have tentatively agreed on a standardized framework for digital asset oversight, focusing on consumer protection, AML, and stablecoin stability. FinCEN withdrew earlier proposals regarding crypto anti-money laundering oversight of transactions involving self-hosted wallets and mixers.
