

Daily Multi-Asset Trading Blueprint & Level Execution Manual

Date:

Friday, September 6, 2026

Session Highlight:

New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open)

Session News Focus:

Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The US Federal Reserve's stance remains a key focus, with expectations of a potential rate hike by year-end to curb inflation, although recent strong household spending and a drop in core inflation to 2.2% might prompt consideration of rate cuts to support growth.
- The European Central Bank (ECB) is widely anticipated to hike rates by 25 basis points on September 10th.
- Global GDP growth is projected to remain modest at around 3.2% for 2025 and 3.1% for 2026, with persistent risks from trade tensions and geopolitical uncertainty.
- Inflationary pressures continue, influenced by disrupted supply chains, new tariffs, and surging demand related to AI infrastructure investment, with US consumer price inflation reaching 3.4% in July.

2. US & European Markets

- Wall Street futures indicate a challenging start, with the S&P 500 experiencing its worst week since March 2023, down 4.3%, and the Nasdaq losing 5.8%.
- Pre-market data for September 1st, 2026, showed the Dow down 360 points, S&P 500 down 50 points, and Nasdaq down 375 points, influenced by Middle East hostilities and rising oil prices/bond yields.
- Mega-cap tech stocks, including Tesla, Microsoft, and Nvidia, saw a rally on September 3rd, with Tesla jumping over 6% and Microsoft advancing 3.21%. Nvidia reported a remarkable 106% year-over-year surge in sales.
- The FTSE 100 experienced its steepest daily decline in six weeks on Thursday, falling 0.8%.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian equity markets closed the week cautiously, extending their corrective trend due to elevated crude oil prices, renewed geopolitical tensions, and global interest rate uncertainty.
- The Nifty 50 declined 1.15% week-over-week to 23,897.70, marking its fifth consecutive week of losses, while the Sensex slipped 0.97% to 76,515.43.
- The Oil and Gas index outperformed, rallying 1.30%, while the Auto index saw the steepest decline, shedding over 3.8%.
- New rules for the National Stock Exchange's (NSE) pre-open session will be implemented from September 7th, dividing the 15-minute session into phases and restricting market orders during the second phase. Gold and Silver ETFs will also be included in the pre-open session for the first time.
- Continued selling by foreign investors remains a concern.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI crude oil is trading around $91.22-$91.48 per barrel, and Brent crude around $95.85, facing ongoing pressure from geopolitical risks in the Middle East, particularly around the Strait of Hormuz.
- Gold has broken the $4,200 barrier and recently topped $4,500 an ounce, driven by rate-cut optimism and rising geopolitical risks, with a year-to-date gain of 60%.
- Bitcoin's momentum is building, with the cryptocurrency trading around $79,948. Ethereum is also advancing at $2,509.75.
- Notable whale movement saw 600 BTC, dormant for 16 years, transferred to new wallets, not exchanges, indicating potential long-term holding.
- Crypto ETFs are showing signs of rebound following hints of additional Fed rate cuts.

STRATEGY-BASED DAILY TICKER SELECTION & SECTOR CONSTRAINTS

INDIAN EQUITIES (STRICTLY LONG-ONLY)

| Ticker                | Direction | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|-----------------------|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| RELIANCE (RIL)        | Long      | Oil & Gas sector outperformed last week, and RIL is a Nifty heavyweight. Targeting a 50-SMA support bounce if there's an intraday pullback to established support.                                                 |
| TATASTEEL (TATASTEEL) | Long      | Despite overall market weakness, a strong large-cap metal player could see buying on dips. Looking for a 20/50 EMA golden cross on daily or 4-hour charts, indicating renewed upward momentum from current levels. |

US EQUITIES

Large-Cap (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

| Ticker | Direction      | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------|----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| NVDA   | Long           | Nvidia continues to show strong AI-driven sales growth (106% YoY). Seeking a 21-day EMA pullback entry point on daily charts, assuming the underlying bullish trend remains intact amidst pre-market volatility.                          |
| TSLA   | Bi-Directional | Known for its high volatility and significant pre-market movers. Will monitor for a 50-day SMA rejection for a potential short entry, or a sharp pullback to key support for a long entry, dependent on intraday price action and volume. |
| MSFT   | Long           | Microsoft rallied on September 3rd and remains a strong mega-cap growth leader. Targeting a 21-day EMA pullback on daily charts, looking for re-accumulation before further upside.                                                       |

Mid-Cap & Small-Cap (STRICTLY LONG-ONLY)

| Ticker           | Direction | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|------------------|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| SNOW (Snowflake) | Long      | Surged nearly 26% intraday on September 3rd, reinforcing confidence in AI infrastructure demand. Looking for a high Relative Volume (RVOL > 2.0) breakout above recent consolidation, indicating strong institutional interest.      |
| PLTR (Palantir)  | Long      | Rallied over 8% on September 3rd, benefiting from AI narrative. Monitoring for a Stage-2 VCP (Volatility Contraction Pattern) breakout on daily or weekly charts, suggesting accumulation and readiness for a sustained move higher. |

CRYPTO FUTURES (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

| Ticker  | Direction      | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------|----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| BTC/USD | Bi-Directional | Bitcoin is showing strong momentum, nearing $80,000, and crypto ETFs are rebounding. Applying a 4H 21-EMA trend following strategy for long positions, and looking for high-volume volatility breakouts above resistance or below support for both long/short opportunities. |
| ETH/USD | Bi-Directional | Ethereum also participated in the recent crypto rally, trading above $2,500. Utilizing a 4H 21-EMA trend following strategy, and seeking high-volume volatility breakouts to capitalize on significant price movements in either direction.                                  |

COMMODITIES (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

| Ticker                       | Direction      | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|------------------------------|----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| XAU/USD (Gold)               | Long           | Gold broke above $4,200 and topped $4,500 due to rate-cut optimism and geopolitical risks. Using Pivot levels for support identification and Fibonacci extension levels to project upside targets for long positions.                                                 |
| CL=F (WTI Crude Oil Futures) | Bi-Directional | WTI Crude Oil is highly volatile due to US-Iran tensions and supply threats from the Strait of Hormuz. Employing Pivot points for intraday reversal detection and Fibonacci extension/retracement levels to determine potential targets for both long and short trades. |

FOREX FUTURES (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

| Ticker  | Direction                    | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------|------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| EUR/USD | Bi-Directional               | Diverging central bank policies (ECB hawkish, Fed potentially dovish) can create significant moves. Short-term trend following based on 1-hour chart momentum, looking for breakouts above/below key intraday resistance/support.               |
| GBP/USD | Bi-Directional               | Sensitive to broader USD strength/weakness and UK-specific economic data. Short-term momentum plays around key support/resistance levels, using high-volume reversals as entry signals.                                                         |
| USD/JPY | Long (Carry Swing)           | Favored for macro carry swing trades due to persistent interest rate differentials. Long-term trend continuation strategy on daily charts, buying on pullbacks to the 50-day SMA, with a focus on capturing sustained interest rate divergence. |
| AUD/USD | Bi-Directional (Carry Swing) | Commodity-linked currency, sensitive to global growth and risk sentiment. Macro carry swing opportunities, also watching for short-term reversals on geopolitical news or commodity price fluctuations.                                         |

INDIAN OPTIONS (BI-DIRECTIONAL)

| Ticker            | Direction      | Strategy & Selection Reason                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|-------------------|----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| NIFTY50 Options   | Bi-Directional | Nifty is consolidating after recent losses, making it suitable for opening range breakouts. Implementing a 15-minute Opening Range Breakout (ORB) strategy. Buy Calls for upside breakout, Puts for downside breakout.          |
