Session Highlight: 🇺🇸 New York Session Pre-Open Briefing (1 Hr Before Open)

Session News Focus: Wall Street pre-market movers, US Federal Reserve news, mega-cap US stocks (NVDA, MSFT, TSLA), and WTI Crude Oil catalysts.

📰 SECTION 0: DAILY MACRO & FINANCIAL NEWS DIGEST

1. Global Macro & Central Banks

- The IMF-World Bank Annual Meetings are currently underway in Bangkok, from October 12-18, 2026, with key discussions expected on artificial intelligence, persistently high energy prices, and rising global public debt.
- Most US Federal Reserve officials anticipate another interest rate hike this year, likely in December, to counter elevated inflation, although policymakers may maintain current rates at their October 28-29 meeting. The August core PCE inflation stood at 0.25%, with a 3% year-over-year change.
- The European Central Bank (ECB) is widely expected to keep interest rates unchanged at its October 28-29 meeting, before a potential rate increase in December. Eurozone inflation escalated to 3.8% in September, driven by higher oil prices due to Middle East conflicts.
- The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) raised its repo rate by 25 basis points to 5.50% on October 7, 2026, shifting its policy stance to "calibrated tightening" to prioritize inflation control. The RBI revised its FY2026-27 CPI inflation forecast to 5.2% and GDP growth forecast to 7.1%.

2. US & European Markets

- The Q3 2026 earnings season for S&P 500 companies officially commences this week, starting October 12, with strong year-over-year earnings growth of 29.5% projected. The technology and energy sectors are expected to be primary drivers of this growth.
- Megacap tech stocks such as NVIDIA (NVDA), Microsoft (MSFT), and Tesla (TSLA) have shown significant upward momentum, with Nvidia recently approaching record high valuations.
- US consumer sentiment for October 2026 recorded its second-lowest reading on record, indicating potential headwinds for consumer spending.
- The FTSE 100 concluded last week (ending Oct 9, 2026) with gains, following a period of high volatility influenced by oil prices, inflation concerns, and increasing government borrowing costs.

3. Indian Markets & Dalal Street

- Indian markets experienced persistent selling by Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) for the eighth consecutive week in October, while Domestic Institutional Investors (DIIs) provided crucial market support through consistent net buying.
- The Nifty 50 index managed to break an eight-week losing streak, closing marginally higher for the week ended October 9, 2026, primarily due to strong domestic institutional inflows.
- Key market risks for Indian equities include sustained FII selling, global macroeconomic headwinds, Brent crude prices remaining above $100 per barrel, a weakening Indian Rupee, and volatile US bond yields.

4. Commodities & Crypto Wire

- WTI Crude Oil futures are trading near the significant $100-a-barrel threshold, largely due to ongoing concerns about disruptions to Gulf oil infrastructure amid the US-Israel conflict, contributing to elevated inflation risks.
- Gold (XAU/USD) rallied towards $4,180-$4,200 on October 9, 2026, recovering from a two-month low, as US Treasury yields eased and the dollar’s upward trend paused. Robust inflows into gold ETFs in September suggest sustained investment demand despite short-term price fluctuations.
- Bitcoin is holding steady around $83,000, despite broader weakness in altcoins and outflows from crypto ETFs. Upcoming US CPI data and the Federal Reserve’s interest rate decision are expected to be key market catalysts.
- The global cryptocurrency regulatory landscape is undergoing a significant transformation in 2026, moving towards structured oversight with major jurisdictions formalizing frameworks to encourage institutional adoption and enhance market stability.
